CALIFORNIA.
READY MADE CLOTHING.

Consisting of Colonial Tweed Coats, Trousers, and Vests, all made to order, and at a much lower price than usually sold.

A large stock of white and coloured SHIRTS at a very low price.

TO THE PUBLIC.

C. S. HAIGH, having returned from England in the Harmony, respectfully informs that they had only the choice of two evils. The want of labour was so urgent that but for the considerable supply afforded by the late immigration, the best interests of the colony must have been sacrificed. The price of labour would have gone up so high, that the pastoral interest, on which the prosperity of the colony depended, would have been destroyed. He was bound by the statistical returns, which he had the honour annually to lay on the table of that House, that about entirely the same quantity of labour was natural wealth. Besides the main staple wool, there was the stock of the colony. He found the exportation of stock last year amounted to £600,000, while the importation of stock and tallow amounted to £140,000; and this, besides leather, hides, butter and cheese, all the produce of the natural grasses of the soil. Therefore, if the price of labour had not been kept down, the pastoral interest would not have been kept down, the colony must inevitably have gone to ruin; and he was not the advocate of a large and irregular system of immigration. He thought a gradual and regular immigration, even though small, was more beneficial than a large flow of immigration at one time, and its total stoppage at another. By a continuous and steady supply, the colony could be enabled to increase its stock without disturbing the various interests of the country, to effect this, the system should be carefully adjusted, so that we might never have immigrants in excess, nor in too great scarcity. If it was found that the colony was more imminently than that it should take place, in large importations of labour all arriving at one time. It was quite true, as had been said, that the extent to which immigration had been carried was such as to have exhausted the land fund, and that debentures had been issued on the security of the lands of the colony, to the amount of £75,000; and according to advice from the Emigration Commissioners, that the colony would require a large loan would have to be contracted. These debentures he was happy to say had been got off at a low price, the interest they bore was a fraction under five per cent., and he had been very much gratified to find that they could be sent home and be made payable there. By this means the debentures became in fact equivalent to a loan in England. Although the interest on the debentures was at five per cent., a considerable premium had been derived from them, amounting to more than £2000 on the £7500 worth issued. Whether this premium would continue to be given, he could not say, but the interest on the amount of them, he should imagine it was questionable. Some observations had been made as to the character of the assisted immigrants which had taken place—and he admitted that in some cases the selection was not the most desirable. But this was not the fault of the Immigration Commissioners—he was the fault of people, who, impelled by the best motives, had been misled by the necessities of the colony. He particularly alluded to the Colonization Society, which, though it had done much good in making the name of Australia known to the world, but in the meantime had introduced a class which was not the most desirable. He quite agreed that it was not desirable that mechanics and lawyers' clerks should immigrate. They only became burdens on the colony, and it would, as he would have to have spent the money paid for their passages, to have kept them out of the colony. The only sort of labour wanted in the colony was agricultural and pastoral labour, and he was quite sure, no other description was at all in demand. Some remarks also had been passed on the general character of the late immigration. He did not deny that some exceptions might be found, but he believed that in some cases the selection was to have been composed of a useful class—useful both from their qualifications and from their moral character. There had, it was true, been numerous cases of complaint, but these were of a trifling nature, and the interest of the surgeon-superintendents. The low rate of remuneration given to those officers did not ensure that skill, experience, and moral rectitude, which was requisite; and though there had been very few exceptions, the frequency of the complaints rendered some alteration in the system in this respect absolutely necessary. Representations had been made to the Commissioners on this subject, and he doubted not they would be attended to. It had been suggested that it would be desirable to employ navy surgeons for this duty, but from the expense involved in which the immigration was carried on to all the colonies, it would not be possible to find a sufficient number of navy surgeons. He could not at all agree with the remarks made as to the character of the orphan immigration which had been attempted. No doubt these girls had much to learn, but the general account he had of them was that they had conducted themselves well, and made themselves useful in the colony. From these observations he should support the previous question.

Mr. LAMB regarded this question as one of the most important which they had been called upon to consider, and regretted therefore that it should have been brought forward in the period of the session. He was sorry also that the Government had not proposed some measure to stay the progress of this re-emigration to the Colonies, and he was sure that the effect of impoverishing the country. He was surprised at the conduct of the Colonial Secretary, in reference to this question. That hon. gentleman had also opposed the Bill, which was a measure produced by the Government, on account of its retrospective nature, and he admitted that the prospective operation of these resolutions was good in principle, yet in spite of this, his learned friend had signified his intention of voting against the Bill. He was surprised (Mr. Lamb) did not vote in this way, although he was of opinion that the resolutions as they then stood required considerable amendment. It was an honourable position for Northern Australia to have taken up this question, and he had noted upon his first proposition, he might have done much good. He admitted that they would have some difficulty in getting from the immigrants that portion of their passages money which the Government had proposed. This was no reason why they should not make the attempt. He could not agree with the Colonial Secretary that they should be unable to pay the balance of their passages money, possibly be unable to do so. He was sure, however, the colony would be in no worse position than many private individuals who gave money without getting paid. He did not agree with the assertion that the resolutions would introduce no other mechanics ought to be introduced. No doubt too many had come, but this was a matter that should be brought rather to be urged upon the attention of the Commissioners than to be placed upon the resolutions of this House. He did not approve of so sweeping a proposition; and besides this, he did not like to mix up a matter of compensation with a matter of immigration, with the greater question at issue. The hon. member, too, had laid great stress upon the fact that many persons with "thousands of pounds" had been sent to the Colonies for their passages to the colony. Now Mr. Lamb would be very glad that the passage money of persons of such large capital should be paid, but he was not at all in favour of relieving their capital of getting such persons to invest in the colony. He was not at all in favour of relieving such persons, for the same reason that he opposed the one which preceded it—that it had the effect of mixing up minor points of detail with the great question before them.

Mr. MAINTIN was of opinion that there was a good deal of force in the objection which had been pointed out by the Colonial Secretary—that it was retrospective in its operation. This question at all after the rejection of the Bill introduced by Mr. Mackinnon. No doubt that still had a retrospective operation, but the two who proposed to go into Committee on it did so upon a purely prospective basis. It was purely prospective. In principle, therefore, it could have been perfectly the same. With out, however, laying much stress upon this objection, he must admit that it could not be the preamble to these resolutions in its present shape. It contained an assertion that there was an implied contract on the part of the immigrants—that they had paid for their passages money, or for staying in the colony, whereas the fact was, that there was no contract of this description.

views either expressed or implied. To meet the views of the Government he should propose certain alterations in the resolutions before the House.

The honorable Member was about to move an amendment, when the Speaker interrupted him by saying that no amendment could be proposed after the previous question had been moved. If the motion succeeded, then of course there was an end to the whole question at present; but if it failed, it would be clear that the question should be put, then it must be put in its original shape, and without further debate. After some discussion upon this point, the decision of the Speaker was taken to be final by the authority of Mr. May. Mr. Martin subsequently read the amendments, which he had intended to propose, but the Speaker having ruled that it could not be received, the matter was dropped.

Some further conversation of a desultory nature having taken place upon the question of order, it was understood that the propositions would be again brought forward in an amended form, and that the House might reject the motions on the "previous question" would not prevent this subject from being again brought under the notice of the House.

An amendment of Mr. J. Macarthur was then put to the House, and it was decided that the question should not be put.

RETURNS.

The COLONIAL SECRETARY laid upon the table a return containing the address moved by Colonel Snodgrass, relating to the survey, &c., of Moreton Bay; a return to an address moved by Mr. Leslie Foster, being copies of the correspondence relative to the land regulations referred to in the address; and another return to an address moved by Mr. Moor, showing the difference between the estimates prepared by the Superintendent of Port Phillip and those submitted to the Council. These returns were ordered to be printed.

VAGRANCY BILL.

Mr. NI HOLS moved the second reading of the above Bill, explaining that its provisions were similar to those contained in the Act of exception so formerly of them as were copied from the Act so much prepared by the Attorney-General, with reference to the registration of expiring convicts and their control. It was his object to give more definite power to the police to register their place of abode in the same manner as Norfolk Island ex-convicts were compelled to do, but as many such persons might find their way here under the guise of free passengers, he wished to extend the scope of the Act alluded to, that proof of such persons previous convict character should be good prima facie evidence. These precautions were deemed necessary, for it was to persons of this class that the thieves' guilds resorted, and many robberies which took place in Sydney and its vicinity.

The Bill was then read a second time, and carried.

Clause 1, repealing William IV. No. 6, was passed.

Clause 2, enacting that persons convicted in this colony, or in any other British possession of crime, who were confined in gaol, or transported or offence, and residing within the colony, should register their places of residence with the Justice in Petty Sessions, was also passed.

Clause 3 was struck out.

The House then resumed its sitting, and leave was granted for the further consideration of this Bill in Committee on Thursday.

SUMMARY CONVICTIONS BILL.

Mr. WALKER, the Attorney-General, read the above Bill, and several of the clauses having been passed, several of the clauses having been considered to-day.

Council adjourned at ten minutes to seven, until three o'clock tomorrow (this) afternoon.

ASSIZE INTELLIGENCE.

BATHURST CIRCUIT COURT.

THURSDAY, SEPTEMBER 27.

BENSON HIS HONOR MR. JUSTICE DICKSON.

HIGHWAY ROBBERY.

James Bennett was indicted for highway robbery of the mail from Wellington to Bathurst, and stealing the mail bags.

The evidence in this case was nearly similar to that of the prisoner's wife, who was convicted as accessory on Saturday last.

John Walker, the witness, deposed that on Wednesday, the 27th of June, about 6 P.M., he received from the driver of the mail from Wellington to Molong the mail bags from Wellington to Bathurst, that he carried to the residence of the prisoner, and for purpose, keeping the key until the following morning six A.M., when he took the bags and put them into the vehicle he drove, and started, having two male and one female passengers; and he proceeded on his journey, and about half beyond Guyang, at a place called Luck's Hill, two men, armed with fowling pieces, rushed out of the bush and commanded him to stop. He immediately alighted, and told the man of the two presented him piece at him, when he pulled up, and the passengers dismounted from the vehicle, and were ordered to bail up; both men had something blacked on their faces, and they appeared to be of the taller man then went up to the vehicle and took therefrom four mail bags, with which he retreated into the bush in the same direction he came. He followed by the shorter man, and the (the driver) him asked the prisoner for four or five years; the short man did not speak during the time, if he had and it was the prisoner, he would have been able at once to identify him; but he never spoke, and he resembled the shorter man of the two, and to the best of his belief he was the man, but he could not swear positively to him.

Mr. Mayne, Commissioner of Crown Lands for New South Wales, deposed that on the 26th June he posted a letter at the Post Office, Wellington, a letter directed to the Chief Commissioner of Crown Lands, for the Honorable Mr. Freeman, and which inclosed £6 note, the amount of which was paid, and the number he had taken a memorandum; that now shown him it was it.

Mrs. Jane McCabe proved that she received the money after her husband, James, had been bedsted, and had handed the note to her husband, Michael McCabe, who stated he had paid it to Mr. T. D. Syer, storekeeper at Bathurst.

The receipt of the note from the prisoner, and knowing from an advertisement in the Bathurst Advertiser that it was stolen at the Wellington mail robbery, handed it over to the chief constable of the city, who procured the receiving of it from Mr. Syer, and that the note now produced was that note he so received. Constable Finnelly was the next witness, and deposed that, after examining the prisoner, he found on him the purses and articles which was a memorandum or list of the notes, checks, and orders, that had been stolen at the mail robbery; this was proved to be in the hands of the prisoner.

This closed the case for the prosecution.

Mr. HOLROYD, in defence, objected that the information was incorrect; in the first count the name of the prisoner was given as John Mayne, who had paid with the note or right to it from the moment he had posted it.

The SOLUTION. JERIAL said, he would abandon this count, and proceed to trial on the charge of highway robbery, the property was laid down as that of the Government.

Mr. HOLROYD said the same objection here existed; it had not been proved that the letter the note alluded to was sent to the Government, nor to whom it was addressed, and therefore could not be the property of the Government, but should have been laid as that of the mail contractors, Messrs. Rotton or McKilloch, of James With the prisoner, in whose charge the mail bags then were.

His Honor got rid of this objection by himself inserting the name of the latter in the information, laying the property in him, and proceeding with this alteration the case must proceed.

Mr. HOLROYD made a very able defence for his client.

Afterwards, after a short absence, returned a verdict of guilty.

The prisoner was at first remanded for sentence, but at a subsequent period of the day that the Attorney-General could not attend, the Solicitor-General should be allowed to appear and prosecute on behalf of Her Majesty the Queen—thus the demurrer was overruled.

Mr. PURFROY then moved to traverse the proceedings until next assize.

His Honor referred the learned gentleman to the Label Act, wherein he would find that it was provided that if the defendant had been joined by the Crown, and the sitting of the Court, he was bound to be prepared to take his trial at that, the case must, therefore, proceed.

Mr. PURFROY then applied to plead with the case, succeeded, and another demurrer was filed containing three pleas—one on the general issue, and two of justification.

Mr. Purfroy read the two first pleas, and was about to read the third, when he was interrupted by the learned Judge, who said the demurrer embraced the whole three counts, and did not take them separately, he must confine himself to two pleas.

Mr. Holroyd having in a reply, issue was joined by the Crown, and the proposition was made to attend at nine o'clock the following morning, until which hour the Court was adjourned.

PAYDAY.

His Honor was in attendance punctually at nine o'clock. The Jury having been called the case was proceeded with.

Mr. HOLROYD, in a very able speech, advocated the cause of the prosecutor.

Mr. PURFROY, in a reply, was Mr. H. F. Purphen, who produced a copy of the declaration filed by the defendant in the Colonial Secretary's Office, previous to the publication of the first number of the Bathurst Advocate, and another copy of the same, as it appeared in the editor, printer, and publisher; this copy was certified by the Colonial Secretary whose hand-writing Mr. S. produced.

Mr. Purfroy objected that the original document had not been produced, and no secondary evidence.

His Honor overruled this objection, and stated at some length his reason for doing so.

The second plea produced a copy of a paper containing the offence laid, and which he stated he purchased at the office of the defendant, on the day of publication.

Four witnesses were called, who all swore that the defendant had committed the offence complained of as libellous, were intended to apply to John Davis, Chief Constable of Bathurst, and his family.

Mr. PURFROY, in an eloquent speech, which occupied an hour and a-half, ably defended his client.

His Honor summed up at considerable length, explaining very clearly to the Jury the law of libel, and the points for their consideration.

After a short absence they returned a verdict for the Crown on all the counts, but not maliciously, and that the plea of justification had not been proven.

The 2nd count, to be imprisoned one month in Bathurst Gaol; and pay a fine of £20; on the 3rd count, one other month in Bathurst Gaol, and pay a fine of £20; and on the 4th count a fine of 1s. to the Queen, to be paid by the defendant, and to enter into recognizances to be of good behavior for 12 months, himself in £50 and two sureties of £25 each, and to be further imprisoned until such fines be paid and sureties entered.

Whilst the Jury were out, Mr. PURFROY suggested again that the proceedings should have been instituted in the name of the Attorney-General.

His Honor said, he would reserve that point for the Judges in full bench.

This concluded the business, and the Court was adjourned sine die.

THE REV. T. W. BODENHAM.

The following Address was presented to the English Church, during the service of the Sovereignty to the Rev. T. W. Bodenham, Richard Jones, Esq., on the part of the subscribers to the testimonial:—

TO THE REV. T. W. BODENHAM.

Rev. and Dear Sir,

We are unwilling that you should take your departure from this part of the colony without some record of our sense of your valuable services, and our attesting a grateful esteem for the energy and zeal which you have expended in establishing a place for the worship of God at Kangaroo Point, and more especially for your fulfillment of ministerial duty under the difficulty of severe bodily infirmity; and, as a fitting acknowledgment of your services, we are desirous of presenting you with the accompanying offering, which we request you will favour us by accepting, and applying any way most agreeable to yourself.

We are gratified to know that you will turn to the more immediate sphere of your labours with renovated health, and we trust the same gracious Hand which has made us residents here, will be means of your improvement, and will grant you the most successful improvement, which we may bear of your perfect restoration to health. And wishing you and Mrs. Bodenham a safe passage to the place of your appointment, and a successful and happy career, we will sign ourselves, Dear Sir, your sincere friends.

[Here follow the signatures.]

Sept. 1st, 1849.

THE FOLLOWING REPLY WAS MADE TO THE FOREGOING ADDRESS.

To Richard Jones, Esq., and other Contributors to the Testimonial, presented to the Rev. T. W. Bodenham, on the occasion of his returning to Sydney from Moree Bay.

DEARLY BELOVED BROTHERS—

I have been honoured by the most kind and comforting address of this day's date, and beg you to accept, both for this and testimonial which accompanied it, my warmest thanks.

I have experienced throughout my ministerial career many most generous kindnesses, and in times of severe affliction, much most Christian sympathy; yet, nevertheless, I feel peculiarly anxious to meet at Moree Bay, where I was an uninvited guest, a number of acts of friendship which have been showered upon me from the very moment of our arrival.

When I came here in October last, I had no expectation of being ever again able to conduct the public worship of God; and yet I may be assured that while I feel deeply that that disease has become inactive and that I feel able to perform my ministerial life, because I have been permitted to proclaim the glad tidings of salvation, and to preach "Jesus Christ and Him crucified" to the heathen of Moree Bay.

You speak in terms of satisfaction of the erection of our school-house at Kangaroo Point, and very cordially do I take part in your joy. It was commenced at a time when, my strength was weak and weakness was my only way to assist your most valuable clergyman. As his agent, I was privileged to act; and while it is satisfactory to me to find that the school has been commensurate with expectations both of the Government and I am devoutly thankful to Almighty God that He has established His public worship, and also His Christian school, in this rapidly increasing portion of the colony.

For the numberless personal kindnesses which have been bestowed on Mrs. Bodenham and myself, we return our sincere thanks. We cannot cease to ever look back with gratitude to our dear friends of the colony.

With an earnest prayer to the Great上帝 of events that while, untidely and seasonally you are blessed with such temporal good as will enable you to have, you will be also "grow in grace and in the knowledge of our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ," believe me to remain.

Your faithful and obliged servant in the Lord

THOS. W. BODENHAM.
